WHALE MEAT BEING WASTED

Great Portions of the Monarch of the Seas Are Good as a Food Product.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 13.—"If the American and European people could be educated to the point of eating the canned flesh of animals which individually yield as much as 80,000 pounds of meat, what a wonderful food supply would be within reach of the poor of our great cities," writes Roy Chapman Andrews, of New York, in an interesting communication on whaling, to the National Geographic Society, at Washington, D. C. He predicts that as a result of the world hunt for the monarch of the seas, now going on in full blast, the commercial extinction of the large whales, within a very few decades, is inevitable. Except in Japan, he says, great portions of the flesh of the animals, which is palatable and healthful, is now going to waste or is being used for fertilizing purposes.

"Few people realize that the blue, or sulphur bottom, whale found in all our oceans is not only the largest animal that lives today, but is also, so far as is now known, the largest animal that has ever existed on the earth or in the waters," writes Mr. Andrews. "Chacuncus have been measured which reached a length of eighty-seven feet and in all probability weighed as much as seventy-five tons. Although the mouth is enormous, large enough in fact to permit ten or twelve men to stand upright in it, the throat measures only nine inches in diameter. These animals, like most of the whale-bone whales, usually feed on minute substances, a shrimp about three-quarters of an inch long. They probably never eat fish or any kind of other food is to be had, and of the many stomachs which have been examined, never could anything but the little red crustaceans be found. From the stomach of one blue whale at Vancouver Island five barrels of shrimp were taken, and it was by no means full.

"Probably no cetacean has such wonderful strength as have the blue whales. When I saw a blue whale with a harpoon between the shoulders drag a ship, with engines at full speed astern, through the water almost as though it had been a row-boat, I began to listen to the stories of their incredible strength with more respect. The finback, closely related to the blue whale, has been called the 'greyhound of the sea,' for its long, slender body is built on the lines of the racing yacht and the animal can equal the speed of the fastest steamship.

"All the large whales show great affection for their young, and the blue cows and calves will seldom leave each other when pursued by a ship, I remember at one time in Alaska we sighted a female finback with a young one about thirty feet long beside her. As the old whale fought her almost instantly. The calf, although badly frightened, continued to swim in a circle about the mother had been hoisted to the surface, the little fellow came along side so close that I could have struck him with a stone. During the time that the carcass was being inflated and the gun reloaded, the calf was constantly within a few fathoms of the ship, swimming around and around, sometimes rubbing itself against the body of the dead mother. Finally a harpoon was sent crashing into its side, and it sank without a struggle.

In the upper portion of the head of the sperm whale is an immense oil tank in which valuable 'spermaceti' is found in a liquid condition and from which it may be dipped with a bucket when an incision is made. From a sperm whale sixty feet in length which was sent from Japan, twenty barrels of spermaceti were taken out of the 'case' and the surrounding fat. The sperm whale is the animal which yields ambergris, the valuable substance used so extensively in the manufacture of our best perfumes."

Head Stopped Up? Can't Breathe? Try the New External Treatment

Applied in Salve Form Over Throat And Chest Relieves by Inhalation And Absorption.

Vapor treatments are best for all inflammations of the air passages. The vapors carry the medication direct to the inflamed surface without disturbing the stomach as do internal medicines. A cheap and very convenient vapor treatment is a good application of Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Group and Pneumonia Salve over the throat and chest, covered with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases vapors of Thymol, Eucalyptol, Menthol, Camphor, and Pine Tar, that are inhaled with every breath, through the air passages to the lungs. These vapors open the air passages, loosen the phlegm, and heal the raw surfaces. If the cold is in the chest, apply hot wet towels to open the pores. Vick's is then absorbed through the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness.

A little Vick's applied up the nostrils and over the temples is very beneficial for head colds and catarrh and will relieve most cases of headache and neuralgia. Vick's is also excellent for Asthma, Hay Fever, and Bronchial troubles. Three sizes, at all dealers—25c, 50c, and $1.00. —Advertisement
